

Creating the future together

The creative industries need the next generation of artists to reflect the full richness of our society. That pipeline starts here.

As a national leader in arts education, Guildhall Young Artists provides a platform for young people aged 4–18 to expand their creativity and confidence. As demand grows, so does the need for bursaries.

From 27 May – 8 June donations through the Big Give will be doubled*, raising funds for children from economically disadvantaged backgrounds to join any of our programmes.

Every bursary is an investment — in a child's confidence today, and in the vitality of the arts for decades to come.
